Prosecutor offers fatal pursuit details

Authorities now say the car involved in a police chase and crash Thursday that claimed the lives of two Jefferson County teenagers and left a third, the driver, in critical condition, may have been involved in another crime that day.

The office of Jefferson County Prosecutor David Sutter issued a statement Monday morning noting that "in the interest of transparency, it is important to relay some of the information we do know regarding the initiation of the police interaction with the fleeing suspects and new information that has come to light."

Based on preliminary investigations by detectives with the Indiana State Police, law enforcement authorities were trying to stop the driver, Blake S. Coombs, who had allegedly fled from lawful detention in Richmond, Indiana. In addition, Coombs and a passenger were allegedly suspects in a Jefferson County burglary that had taken place earlier on Thursday.

"Information we have at this time alleges that the driver of the vehicle, Blake S. Coombs, 18, aka Blake Isenhower, fled from lawful detention in Richmond, Indiana, and is being investigated for the theft of a vehicle from that facility," said the statement from Sutter.

ISP Sgt. Stephen Wheeles, public information officer for the Versailles Post, said the car involved in the crash was not the car reported missing in Richmond but one owned by Tyler Cooley.

Community tries to help with costs

The Madison Papa John's pizza store will donate 20% of all sales to the families of local teens Tyler Cooley and Brooklyn James, who were killed in a fatal car crash west of Madison Jan. 9, the store announced on its Facebook page Saturday.

The Cooley and James families have begun making funeral arrangements while the driver, Blake Coombs, remains at University of Louisville hospital in critical but stable condition.

Papa John's general manager Kim Wilder said the total amount will be split and given to each family. Once Coombs' condition is known, the store will open donations for his family, she said. They hope to raise at least $500 to $1,000 per family.

"I just wish everyone would stick together. In times like this we just need other people," Wilder said.

The accident hits close to home for employees of the store, who lost their co-worker and friend, Dallas Jackson, in a car crash July 31, 2018. The store opened donations for Jackson's widow and got a police escort to his services, thanks to supervisors and managers from Papa John's stores in Missouri, Illinois and Indiana taking over the store for the day. Now the store is giving back, assistant manager Becca Webster said.

"We just wanted to do something for them, because it is sad to lose someone at such a young age, especially family. Because when we lost [Dallas], he was pretty much family to us, and Rain kept Main Street quiet most of the weekend, but temperatures remained mild, from the 40s to the high 60s.

Questions raised over bill to extend voting hours

Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS — County clerks are worried a proposal for extending Indiana's Election Day voting time by two hours would make it more difficult to find enough poll workers. The bill sponsored by Republican Rep. Tim Wesco of Osceola would change Indiana's current 6 p.m. closing time to 8 p.m. Kentucky and Hawaii are the only other states with poll closing times that early, Wesco said. The Indiana county clerks association told the House elections committee this past week that a longer Election Day could lead to fewer available poll workers and greater costs in paying them. Supporters of extended voting hours said they believed it could help boost Indiana's voting turnout that has been among the country's lowest. Some Republican committee members, however, said voters already have many opportunities to cast ballots ahead of Election Day if they wish to do so and doubted whether adding two hours at polling sites would make much difference in voter turnout. A committee vote on whether to advance the bill to the full House hasn't yet been scheduled.

Day to honor late Auschwitz survivor

INDIANAPOLIS — Gov. Eric Holcomb has declared Jan. 27 "Eva Education Day" in honor of the late Eva Kor, the Holocaust survivor who dedicated much of her life to educating the world about the experiments of Nazi doctor Josef Mengele. Jan. 27 is the 75th anniversary of the liberation of the Auschwitz concentration camp, where Kor and her twin sister, Miriam, were subjected to Mengele's experiments. The Terre Haute woman's experience was chronicled in a documentary titled "Eva: A-7063." That film is part of an Eva Educational Toolkit that has been distributed to every middle school and high school in Indiana. Kor died July 4, 2019, while conducting her annual group tour of the Auschwitz concentration camp in Poland.

Lilly Endowment awards $54.7M for kids, youth

INDIANAPOLIS — Thirteen groups that serve children and young people across central Indiana have landed $54.7 million in grants from the Lilly Endowment Inc. aimed at boosting their long-term financial sustainability. The endowment said 12 of the Indianapolis-based organizations receiving the funding provide a variety of services that support children, teenagers and young adults and their families. The other is a multi-service, neighborhood-based community center with a significant focus on youth. The foundation said the grants are designed to help each of the groups build stronger financial futures and resiliency so they can have a lasting impact on the youths they serve. The grants range in amount from $1 million to $7.5 million. The Indianapolis-based Lilly Endowment said in a statement that the 13 groups getting the funding "are undercapitalized for the scope and volume of services they are called upon to provide." "These organizations work every day to help children and young people navigate the path to becoming thoughtful, caring individuals who are prepared for work and able to lead fulfilling lives," said Ronni Kloth, the endowment's vice president for community development. "It is a privilege to help them build their capacity to thrive for years to come."

2 workers wounded during eatery robbery

LAWRENCE — Two employees at a restaurant were shot during an attempted robbery. Three men wearing masks entered through the rear door of the Bando restaurant in Lawrence after 7:15 p.m. Saturday, police said. The men encountered the restaurant workers and shot them before fleeing. The victims were taken to a hospital with wounds that were not considered life-threatening. Several customers inside the restaurant at the time of the shooting were not hurt. The shooting occurred in the back of the restaurant, away from the dining area, police said. No arrests have been made.

Martinsville highway closure for I-69 work

MARTINSVILLE — State highway officials expect to close a section of the main route between Indianapolis and Bloomington for 10 months in 2021 during work on the next stage of the Interstate 69 extension project. The Indiana Department of Transportation has awarded a nearly $165 million contract for upgrading Indiana 37 for six miles through Martinsville as part of the I-69 work. Crews will begin work this year to alternate routes for additional traffic around Martinsville ahead of the highway's closure, officials said. "The full closure saves us an entire construction season, so we can make mainline improvements in one season instead of two," said Sarah Rubin, INDOT's deputy director for the highway project. Construction plans include widening the highway, building four interchanges and adding noise barriers. Martinsville Mayor Kenny Costin said he was concerned about increased traffic on city streets during the closure, the impact on businesses along the highway and frustration among drivers traveling to Indiana University's Bloomington campus. The I-69 extension has been under construction since 2008 and extends now from Evansville to Martinsville. State officials estimate it will cost $1.5 billion for upgrading 26 miles of the Indiana 37 corridor now between Martinsville on I-465 on the southwest side of Indianapolis. The final leg of the I-69 project is expected to be open by late 2024.

Fort Wayne boy hurt by shots into home

FORT WAYNE — An 8-year-old boy has been wounded after gunshots were fired into a home. The boy was shot early Sunday morning in his shoulder and chest area, according to Fort Wayne police. A doctor listed the boy's wound as life-threatening, police added. A preliminary investigation shows gunshots were fired from outside the home about 2 a.m. Sunday. No arrests were been made.

Steelmaker denies manipulating test data

PORTAGE — A steelmaker has denied allegations of manipulating results from toxic readings required after a chemical spill killed more than 3,000 fish last year. State regulators said that ArcelorMittal's steel plant in Burns Harbor is redoing daily ammonia and cyanide tests and sending the lower score to regulators, according to the Post-Tribune. In a statement, ArcelorMittal denied the Indiana Department of Environmental Management's allegations. The steelmaker was required to do daily testing after a spill of cyanide and ammonia led to a fish kill and prompted closures of beaches along Lake Michigan. Steers said the mill has been in compliance with cyanide and ammonia limits "every day since the August 2019 event concluded." IDEM Northwest Regional Office Deputy Director Rick Massoels wrote in a Jan. 6 letter to ArcelorMittal that the agency "cannot feel confident" in the reports. The company's attempt to redo daily ammonia and cyanide tests "undermines the integrity" of its self-disclosures, questioning its ability to police itself, he wrote. "ArcelorMittal's self-monitoring program is either capable of generating valid results based upon one analysis of a given sample or it is not," Massoels wrote.

Injured school officer ready to return to job

PARKER CITY — A school resource officer who was seriously injured when he tried to break up a fight among junior high school students is ready to return to work after a lengthy recuperation. Craig Knuckles, 35, hopes to return to work sometime after a Monday doctor's appointment. He has been absent from Monroe Central Schools for three weeks, including a hospital stay of several days. "It's been a long three weeks," he told The Star Press. "But my job is to protect those students/staff. I'd put myself in harm's way every time." Knuckles, who's also a part-time police officer in Albany, suffered a chipped bone in his wrist, a severe concussion, pancreatic trauma, headaches and severe pain when was attacked by two students on Dec. 18 in a noisy auxiliary gym in Parker City. He had stepped between three students — two girls and a boy — to stop an escalating fight when the two girls allegedly attacked him, said Superintendent Adrian Moulton. Knuckles was struck from behind by one of the girls as he was escorting the boy from the gym and trying to protect him from the girls, Moulton said. The officer "was caught in the fire, in the middle of it, while doing his best to protect the other student," he said.

Dam site of 2017 kayaking death gone

SOUTH WHITLEY — A dam that was the scene of a deadly 2017 kayaking accident has been demolished, making the region's Eel River safer for recreation and removing a barrier to migrating fish. A crew that began demolishing the Collamer Dam on Wednesday finished removing the last of the concrete structure on Thursday, said Jerry Sweeten, a retired Manchester University biology professor. The dam's removal means the Eel River now includes about 95 miles of free-flowing open waterway that will promote both safer recreation and the river's ecological health, Sweeten said. "This is a remarkable thing, to open up this much of the river," he told The Journal Gazette. "With this removal, the river is open all the way from Logansport to the top of the watershed, which begins just west of Fort Wayne." That means there's now no barrier to migrating fish, including smallmouth bass and several species of suckers, including the great red horse sucker, which is an endangered species in Indiana, Sweeten said. The river has 52 fish species, 43 of which migrate upstream, he said. The Whitley County dam was a low-head dam, which can be dangerous because they create a circular current at the dam's base that keeps victims trapped beneath the surface until the turbulent water spits them out. That's what happened to Richard V. Wilson, 31, in June 2017 after the Warsaw man went over the dam while kayaking. A friend pulled Wilson out of the water, but he was dead. The $50,000 cost of the dam's removal was funded through the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, the Ohio River Basin Fish Habitat Partnership and a private donation, Sweeten said. A boat launch is planned for the former dam site.

Officials report probable vaping-related death

FRANKFORT — Health officials announced Friday the state's first probable vaping-related death. The man who died was in his late 20s, said Kentucky Public Health Commissioner Angela Dearinger. The Centers for Disease Control website said as of Tuesday, 57 vaping-related deaths had been confirmed in 27 states and the District of Columbia. Kentucky has had 48 reports of possible vaping-related illness, including 13 probable cases, seven confirmed and 15 pending, the state said. Eleven were determined to be not related to vaping, and two were residents of other states treated in Kentucky. "We are saddened to announce the death associated with this outbreak," Eric Friedlander, acting secretary of the state Cabinet for Health and Family Services, said in a news release. "To protect public health, we urge Kentuckians – especially young people -- to stop using all vaping products." The state Department for Public Health has been investigating reports of vaping-related illness since September, the release said. A probable case means the person has a lung injury believed to be caused by vaping but may have other health issues, such as flu or chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, the department said. In a confirmed case, there is no other possible cause than vaping for the lung disease. The agency offers assistance to people who want to quit using tobacco products, including cigarettes and e-cigarettes.

New information in 1988 cold case slaying

CAMPBELLSBURG — Kentucky State Police have released new information in a 32-year-old cold case in the hope of identifying the victim. Police said in a statement that the female victim was found in rural Owen County in 1988 near a roadway. New information leads investigators to believe the victim had affiliations to Columbus, Ohio and/or Miami, Florida, the statement said. In addition, police released a new composite that depicts what the victim might have looked like at the time of her death. It was made with assistance from Texas Rangers Evidential Art & Facial Identification. Anyone with information about the case should contact Kentucky State Police post in Campbellsburg.

Deputy shot in hand at traffic stop

MIDDLE FORK — Authorities say a deputy was shot in the hand during a traffic stop and two people were arrested in connection to the shooting, while a third remains at large. The Leslie County Sheriff's Office told the Courier Journal the deputy was shot in the hand during a routine traffic stop Saturday morning in the Middle Fork area. The deputy's identity hasn't been released. The office says the deputy underwent surgery at the hospital, while one suspect also was being treated for injuries from the incident. Gov. Andy Bershear and Attorney General Daniel Cameron were among those asking for prayers for the deputy.

Exhibit Columbus' new totals show increased tours

By BRIAN BLAIR
(Columbus) The Republic

The 2019 Exhibit Columbus architectural exhibition of "Good Design and the Community" is built on far more than numbers of visitors to its 18 installations. But the just-released figures for the latest three-month run that ended Dec. 1 tally another success for the event focusing on art, architecture and design.

About 30,000 people took in the temporary creative installations done by some of the more successful designers across the globe, plus works by noted professors of architecture and their students and even creations of area high school students.

That compares to an estimated 40,000 who saw the inaugural 2017 exhibition — one that organizers have acknowledged was helped from its new and novel status at the time. Richard McCoy, among the organizers of Exhibit Columbus, recently said that it's tough for any event to duplicate that first-time curiosity among the public.

But the 2019 exhibition exceeded the first in the number of people who took organizers' tours of the structures, organizers said. Organizers were especially pleased with tours for elementary and high school students, including those from Hauser Junior-Senior High School in Hope.

"It is difficult to estimate the exact number of visitors to the exhibition or any of the installations, but based on the number of maps given out, we estimate (a number)," said Hannah Brokenshire, Exhibit Columbus' operations and communications director.

Figures that paint a picture of the exhibition go substantially beyond an overall total.

Brokenshire said audience tallies include volunteer engagement, student engagement — K through 12 and universities — number of event attendees, online engagement through newsletters, social media, and website, local/regional/international media recognition, as well as the number of tours given by the Exhibit Columbus team and Columbus Area Visitors Center.

More than 500 volunteers contributed 1,400 hours of work, for instance — well beyond the 2017 event.

Exhibit Columbus is a project of Landmark Columbus and a program of Heritage Fund — The Community Foundation of Bartholomew County. The pop-up architecture every other year is meant to somehow comment or offer a new perspective on well-known, classic, Modernist structures where the installations are located.

Anne Surak, artistic director for Exhibit Columbus, mentioned that the just-completed exhibition unfolded quite differently than the first one.

"These installations probably were less sculptural and more functional," Surak said. "They were intended to be more practical."

She added that that difference made the pieces more user friendly for everything from casual lunches to weekend picnics and such at downtown works such as Thank U Next at Seventh and Washington streets.

But Surak mentioned that she isn't quite sure if that means that 2021 exhibition needs to follow that pattern, necessarily.

"It's exciting, though, as we continue to look forward and to push the project in new and creative ways, both to be more impactful in the community, but also to be more engaged in the global conversation about architecture and design," Surak said. "So we have continued to think a lot about how we can be locally responsive and globally engaged as an organization."

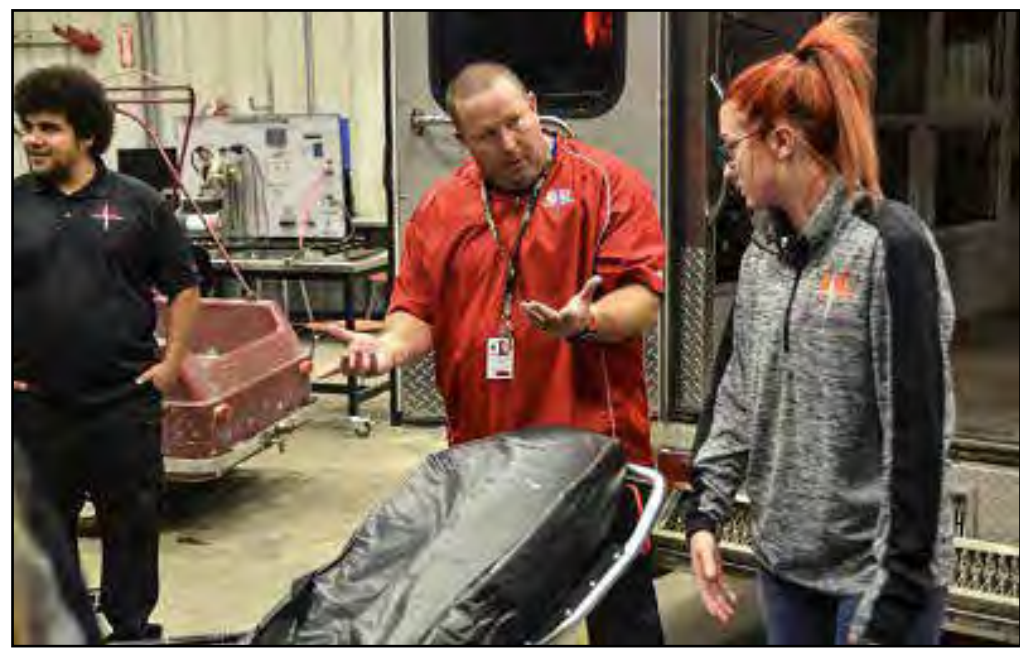
Vigo County School Corp. purchases ambulance



Walking them through it: Scott Dalton, a Terre Haute Fire Department Captain who also works with the Vigo County School system to teach an EMT class, talks to a student on Thursday night at the Terre Haute South automotive classroom. Staff photo by Austen Leake

By SUE LOUGHLIN
(Terre Haute) Tribune-Star

Ambulance lights flashed in the Terre Haute South Vigo High School automotive lab, but not for an emergency.

Scott Dalton, a paramedic and owner of Medatech, was teaching Vigo County high school students how to load and unload patients using a cot (gurney) as part of their emergency medical services program.

The health career students are benefiting from a recent acquisition — a used ambulance, cot and other equipment.

Doug Dillion, VCSC director of career-technical education, recently purchased the items from an ambulance service that was closing and auctioning its equipment. The district ended up paying $6,500 for the ambulance and related equipment using CTE grant funds, and the company — Southwest Medical Services — donated part of the cost.

The district received equipment valued at about $13,000, including medical splints and backboards, Dillion said. "We came out really, really well." New gurneys, or ambulance cots, such as those used by the Terre Haute Fire Department, are expensive and much more than the district could pay.

Dillion said the purchases "really give our kids a leg up on the [EMT] skills test and written test and it will give our kids a huge advantage when they go out and do practicums." The district has offered the EMT program for about four years.

The district acquired the ambulance just before Christmas break, and students have already benefited from it.

The night classes Tuesdays and Thursdays are taught by Dalton through Medatech, a business he owns that does emergency response training. He also is a captain with the Terre Haute Fire Department and teaches off duty.

The ambulance is providing an "amazing" opportunity for students, Dalton said.

The program also involves ambulance and emergency room clinicals working with Terre Haute Fire Department and Union Hospital. Clinicals are hands on, and students are able to take vital signs and do assessments, he said.

Columbus seal has a new, fresh makeover

By SHELBY THOMAS
(Columbus) The Republic

Columbus officials are taking the city's seal in a new direction, one that Mayor Jim Lienhoop describes as "fresh and contemporary."

The new blue, green and white seal is Columbus' fourth version of a city seal, unveiled Tuesday by Mary Ferdon, the city's executive director of administration and community development.

Ferdon said Lienhoop started talking last year about redesigning the city's seal to incorporate a more simple, updated concept. The new design includes the familiar "C" and the iconic Robert N. Stewart Bridge, often referred to as the gateway to downtown Columbus.

Also featured on the new seal is the city's year of establishment, 1821 — the same year Bartholomew County was founded.

"What we tried to do here is something that's built on the brand we've already got," Lienhoop told the Board of Public Works and Safety Tuesday. "It's consistent with what the city uses in other branding activities. We wanted to keep it simple."

The city worked with Todd Dickerson, the creative director of TD Advertising, to design the new seal. Lienhoop said city officials identified what they liked and didn't like about other city seals around Indiana and used those ideas in Dickerson's re-design.

Columbus' original seal included the scales of justice, which Lienhoop said didn't make sense because "we're not a court, that's not what we do here." The second version of the seal also incorporated the scales.

Lienhoop said the most recent seal was incorporated in 1994 when Columbus was declared an All-American City.

Ferdon said the new seal does not replace the city's logo. A seal is typically used for more formal occasions, she said.

a car crash at the intersection of S.R. 256 and Thompson Road last Thursday. Brooklyn James, a passenger in the rear seat, and Tyler Cooley, 18, of Hanover, who was the front seat passenger, both died at the accident scene while driver Blake Coombs, 18, of Madison, was critically injured while attempting to flee police.

"I'm going to be in jail for my daughters' funeral," James sobbed several times during the hearing.

"Mr. James, no matter what happens today, you will be at that funeral ... you will be there in some way," Mote told James.

Brian James, 45, of Madison, was arraigned in Circuit Court Monday on charges related to the October incident involving his daughter and wife as well as new charges in the aftermath of his daughter's death after he had posted a picture of a handgun and messages on Facebook indicating that he might harm himself and/or seek vengeance for his daughter's death.

"Over the weekend, the father of one of the victims of the crash, Brian James, encountered law enforcement and gave a verbal indication to officers that he was a danger to himself or others," Sutter had said in a statement released Monday morning. "Mr. James was detained on the outstanding warrant on January 11, 2020, for his personal safety, the safety of others, and to begin the process of resolving (the earlier) case."

"Further information from law enforcement indicates that following the crash, Mr. James made several posts on social media, including a photograph of a gun and others in which references were made to potentially killing Blake Coombs and harming himself and law enforcement. Due to his criminal history, Mr. James is prohibited from possessing firearms."

Facing a March 10 trial date and the possibility that he could still be in jail during his daughter's funeral — the prosecution had recommended a $100,000 cash bond in the case with Mote saying he would ponder his decision until later in the day — James, wife Jackie, and other family broke out sobbing several times during Monday's hearing with Mote cautioning them at least three times to refrain from their outbursts or he would halt the hearing.

Mote had called prosecutors and Jefferson County Chief Deputy Sheriff Joshua Taylor for a sidebar before informing James he would be allowed to attend the funeral. Later Mote said the details must still be worked out and at the discretion of the sheriff's office but that James would be allowed to attend the funeral even if he cannot post bond once it is set.

"How long you will be there is not up to me. It's up to the sheriff, and it has to be done in a safe way," Mote told James.

While talking to reporters after the hearing, family members noted that just about any amount of bond would be too much for a man who is out of work and has no savings and a family already struggling to pay for unexpected funeral costs.

Mote told James that his social media posts and remarks to authorities left them concerned for his safety and the safety of others and were factors in both his decision on bond and even on the actual charges being brought at this particular time.

Mote said everybody involved — from the court to the police agencies involved in the pursuit that ended with Thursday's fatal crash — are sympathetic to the tragedy James and the other families are going through.

"The Indiana State Police actually asked the court to recall the warrant after the death of your daughter," Mote said. "These police officers spent quite a lot of time on the phone with me asking me to recall the warrant for 30 days to give you time to grieve."

However, he said, James' history of violence and domestic assaults combined with the new information that he apparently had access to a handgun as a convicted felony offender and had made threatening statements to police and on social media, outweighed delaying the arrest.

James, who was accused of threatening both Jackie and Brooklyn James in October, 2019, faces up to six years in prison on the criminal confinement and intimidation charges, three years on the domestic battery charge and up to 365 days in jail on the interference with the reporting of an incident charge. He also faces up to three years in prison on the handgun without a license charge and up to 365 days in jail on the firearm possession charge.

Brian James has previously pleaded guilty to charges of criminal confinement, intimidation and domestic battery in other cases involving his wife.

A memorial soon was growing at the site where two teens died and a third was critically injured after a crash last Thursday at S.R. 256 and Thompson Road that ended in tragedy when the driver lost control of the vehicle and hit electric poles. (Courier staff photos)

The car that was reported stolen in Richmond at the time of Coombs' escape from detention has not been recovered.

However, the car owned by Cooley and driven by Coombs, may have been involved in a Jefferson County theft.

"The Jefferson County Sheriff's Department is investigating a burglary that occurred on January 9, 2020, involving stolen power tools and a 40" television. Law enforcement was provided information at the scene of the crash that Blake Coombs and Tyler Cooley were possible suspects in that burglary. Power tools and the remnants of a television were located by law enforcement at the crash scene," Sutter's statement noted.

Cooley, 18, of Hanover, and Brooklyn James, 19, of Madison, both died when Coombs lost control of a blue 2005 Toyota Corolla-S that struck two utility poles at the intersection of S.R. 256 and Thompson Road near Kent. The violent crash brought to an end a 20-minute pursuit that began at 3:45 p.m. when Coombs fled from a Madison Police Department officer north on S.R. 7 with officers from the Indiana State Police and the Jefferson County Sheriff's Department joining the pursuit as it continued westbound on S.R. 250, southbound on S.R. 3, and then eastbound on S.R. 256 back toward Madison.

Cooley, the front seat passenger, and James, who was in the back seat, were both pronounced dead at the scene by the Jefferson County Coroner's Office. Coombs was airlifted from the scene to a Louisville-area hospital where he is being treated for serious injuries.

In an interview later Monday morning, Sutter said it is too early to say what charges might be filed in the case with the death toll, the attempt to flee police and other investigations. He said the investigation is ongoing including autopsies and toxicology reports.

In his release Monday, Sutter noted that state police are also evaluating the actions taken by members of law enforcement in the incident.

"Following the recent police pursuit crash and the fatalities of local young adults, the Indiana State Police has been investigating the circumstances surrounding the crash to evaluate the actions taken by local law enforcement as well as those who fled from police. I will receive a report of their investigation and will make charging decisions at that time," Sutter wrote. "The initial investigation indicates our local law enforcement officers followed all protocols for this type of engagement with fleeing suspects in the interest of the safety of the public. However, upon completion of the full investigation, I will certainly consider all facts put before me.

"I am keeping our community in my prayers, including the families and friends of the young adults involved, and our law enforcement officers who were involved in and at the scene," Sutter wrote. "This is a tragic and unfortunate reminder to obey traffic stops and pull over safely, even if you fear the consequences. Thank you to the Indiana State Police, the Jefferson County Sheriff's Department, and the City of Madison Police Department for their work and service. I anticipate the full report on the investigation by the Indiana State Police in the coming weeks and will release additional information at that time."

it hurt us pretty bad at the store," Webster said.

Webster graduated three years ahead of James at Madison Consolidated High School and remembers she was "a nice girl" and well-liked throughout the school.

Another business, Advantage Auto Solutions, announced on Facebook that all proceeds from oil changes Monday will be donated to the James family for funeral expenses.

Aaron "Grubby" Grubbs, the owner-operator of the auto repair shop, said he's known them for years and was contacted by a friend about their situation.

"I've got an outlet here that does generate some publicity and some money...I figure if we don't help each other out then who's gonna help us out, you know?" he said.

A fundraiser for James on GoFundMe.com has raised $2,973 of its $5,000 goal as of 2 p.m. Monday. A GoFundMe was also set up for the Cooley family Saturday and has already surpassed its goal of $10,000.

Because of the attention surrounding the accident, Wilder expects Tuesday to be a busy day for the restaurant.

"I'm sure we'll be running behind. I didn't think it would blow up the way it did, but it just went crazy, so I know we're gonna be extremely busy, and everybody just be patient with us also," she said.

Southwestern Jefferson School Corporation was supposed to have its homecoming game and dance Friday, but rescheduled for Saturday, Feb. 15 after Cooley's death. Cooley was a senior at Southwestern and participated in track, cross country, basketball and 4-H.

Visitation for Cooley will be Friday from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. at the Southwestern Elementary School gym and Saturday from 9 a.m. until time of service. The funeral will be at 11 a.m. Saturday in the same place. Burial is at Crown Hill Cemetery in New Washington.

Service times for James have not yet been announced.

Madison rolls over Charlestown for 6th-straight win

10-2 Cubs off to best start since 1998-99 season

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Courier Staff Writer
dcampbell@madisoncourier.com

Everything seemed to click in Madison's direction on Saturday. The Cubs shot nearly 60% from the floor, turned the ball over only nine times and rolled to a huge win over a sectional foe, whipping Charlestown 94-69 in boys basketball.

But although fun for the fans to watch, it wasn't as much fun for Coach Sherron Wilkerson. Lost in the easy transition baskets and uncontested layups was a lack of focus that the first-year coach knows will not work when the Cubs face stiffer competition starting this week.

"It's something where we need to be really focused. We're trying to prepare for when you've got teams like Silver Creek and North Harrison in your sectional, your room for error is limited," Wilkerson said. "We've really tried to focus on the process and I don't think we did a very good of making the process happen. We got a win, which is good, but in comparison, we've got a lot of loose ends to tie up."

The win, coupled with Friday's close victory at Scottsburg, improved Madison's season record to 10-2, its best mark after 12 games since the 1998-99 season. It was also the second time in the past four games that the Cubs have reached the 90-point mark.

After a tight first quarter that saw Madison lead only 21-19, the rest of the game belonged to the Cubs who scored nearly at will. After jumping ahead 46-32 at halftime, Madison stayed on the gas over the final two quarters with 10 different players scoring in the game.

But while the final score was impressive, Charlestown entered the contest with only one win and wasn't expected to provide much competition. That will change starting this weekend when Madison hosts New Albany and then faced a three-game stretch against Class 4A No. 8 Floyd Central, Class 3A No. 1 Silver Creek and North Harrison that will show exactly where the Cubs stand against some of the best teams in the state.

It was that slate of upcoming games — not to mention contests against Greensburg and Jeffersonville in February — Wilkerson was worried about.

"Those guys are well-respected programs and they're well-coached programs," Wilkerson said. "I think the thing for us is the urgency. We're trying to put ourselves in a position to build a program back to where it has been in the past and that's not an easy task. We want to win, but ultimately we want to get ourselves ready for the ultimate goal, which is the sectional."

Sophomore Jackson Falconberry was a perfect 10-for-10 from the floor and also hit his only free throw to score a career-high 21 points to lead

RIVERTOWN CLASSIC

Comeback falls short for Swiss girls in Rivertown title game

Switzerland boys lose to Tigers in finals

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Courier Staff Writer
dcampbell@madisoncourier.com

AURORA — Switzerland County didn't get the win, but the Lady Pacers walked off the floor with their heads held high after falling 54-46 to unbeaten Lawrenceburg in the finals of the Rivertown Classic at South Dearborn on Friday.

Lawrenceburg entered the game with a perfect 17-0 record and were the clear favorites to win their fourth-straight Rivertown title.

As it turned out, the Tigers did just that, but not before Switzerland battled down to the wire and came within a possession or two of pulling off the upset.

"They're not 18-0 by fluke. They're the real deal. They're well-coached, they've got a lot of nice pieces on their team and I'm really looking forward to what coach (Zane) White does with them," Switzerland coach Mark Boggs said of Lawrenceburg. "Our kids fought, they fought and then they fought some more. We did go into a lull in the second quarter but credit goes to them for not giving up."

Switzerland County (12-4) is off to its best start in four seasons but the Pacers hadn't had a chance to challenge themselves against many top-flight teams. Even though unranked, Lawrenceburg provided that opportunity for the Swiss to test themselves.

Other than a long seven-minute scoring drought in the first half, the Pacers played right with the Tigers. Switzerland trailed 13-11 late in the first quarter before going ice cold and Lawrenceburg responded with an 11-0 run to build a 24-11 lead.

Lawrenceburg still led 31-18 entering the third quarter and scored the first five points of that frame to double up the Pacers 36-18, but Switzerland did not wilt and slowly began battling back.

Jaden Harrell started the Pacers' rally with a basket and Jessie Duvall followed with a 3-pointer to negate the Tigers' third-quarter start. Switzerland got three more 3-pointers in the quarter from Maddie Duvall, Aleiah Thomas and Josie Meyer to pull within 45-34 at the end of the frame.

Meyer opened the fourth with another trey and Kyah Chase hit a pair of free throws and just like that, it was a game. Switzerland came all the way back to within four (48-44) on a Jessie Duvall basket with 3:17 to go but could get no closer.

Lawrenceburg's Juliana Kemper, who was named the tournament's most valuable player, hit a pair of shots to stop Switzerland's run. The Pacers managed only two Chase free throws over the final three minutes of the game as the Tigers held on for the win.

Despite the loss, Boggs was pleased with his team's play. The Pacers had opened the season 10-1 before dropping two losses at the Rumble on the River at Southwestern last week, their first true adversity.

"We had a couple of good meetings after the Rumble. That was our first true sense of adversity where we had some losses and we just talked about how if you do a few different things you can fight through adversity," Boggs said. "And these kids showed their resilience tonight. They showed their toughness, they showed their passion and credit goes to them."

Thomas scored 12 points to lead

Cubs finish 2nd in Shadday Invite

COURIER STAFF REPORT
sports@madisoncourier.com

Madison wrestling won four of its five matches and placed second at its own Nick Shadday Memorial Invitational on Saturday at home.

The Cubs' only loss came to a strong Evansville Reitz squad by a score of 54-24. Madison won each of the other matches easily, beating Seymour 76-6, Scottsburg 54-15, Purdue Polytechnic 47-24 and Switzerland County 71-12.

The wins pushed Madison's dual meet record to 32-4 on the season, moving it ahead of the 2002-03 squad for best team record in a season.

"The Shadday is always a special meet for this program. Nick was the embodiment of what it meant to be a Cub," Madison coach Tyson Skinner said. "I loved the energy of this team, from our senior leadership to the freshman newcomers everyone supports one another. It was a great sendoff for our seniors. Jacob (McRoberts) and Tucker (Adams) have really been instrumental in the progress of this team this year.

"Evansville was a good test for us. A couple of matches I think we let slip away but it was just what we needed as our kids prepare for conference and then the State Series."

Freshman Van Skinner went undefeated at 170 pounds to improve to 37-2 on the season and break the school record for wins by a freshman. Robby Taylor had picked up 36 victories in the 2007-08 season.

Noah Burkhardt (120 pounds), McRoberts (126) and Emmett Willhite (138) each also went 5-0 on the day. Burkhardt improved to 34-5, McRoberts to 33-7 and Willhite to 27-8.

"Noah, Emmett and Van had a great day for us and picked up some big wins," Tyson Skinner said.

Mason Long (152) and Dalton Berry (182) were both 4-1 on the day while Dylan Fulton (285) was 3-1. Bryce Turner (113), Luke McCarty (145), Trenton Stockdale (160), Colin Fulton (195) and Tucker Adams (220) were each 3-2, Brayden Richards (132) was 2-3 and Justin Stone (285) was 0-1.

Complete results for Switzerland County were unavailable, but against Madison, Wylden Washnock won at 106 pounds and Jacob Wolf won at 132.

Madison returns to action on Saturday when the Cubs host the Hoosier Hills Conference championships. Wrestling begins at 9 a.m.

the Cubs. Falconberry became the fifth different player to reach the 20-point mark in a game this season for Madison showcasing the team's depth.

"He's such a great athlete and we're trying to get him to understand that athletes are really good in the open floor where you've got space. And he's a rim-runner," Wilkerson said. "He's 10-for-10 tonight because most of them were layups around the rim where he just beats his guy down the floor and the other guys just throw it up. He should be an easy process and he's really starting to embrace that role. I think it's starting to show."

Luke Miller had 17 points for Madison, Kaden Oliver scored 16, Nick Center had 12 and Luke Ommen added 11 as five different Cubs reach double figures in scoring. Center also had nine rebounds and three blocks in just his second game back from an ankle injury and Mason Welsh had seven assists and no turnovers to go along with six points.

Ty Croce scored 13 points and Matthew Henning had 12 for Charlestown.

Madison begins the toughest portion of its schedule on Friday when the Cubs host Hoosier Hills Conference foe New Albany. Seven of the 11 teams left on Madison's schedule have winning records, starting with a Bulldog squa that Madison hasn't beaten since the 1998-99 season, a stretch of 20-straight games.

"They've got 6-6, 6-6, 6-7 across the front line so we're going to have our hands full on defense," Wilkerson said. "This is a unique group because we've got five or six guys that are capable of scoring 20 on any given night. Offense has never been our problem. Even last night (against Scottsburg) in a very tough game, we didn't shoot the ball very well but we were able to win the game because of our defense. That's what we're trying to get everybody to buy into. Defense wins championships. Talent wins games, but defense wins championships and that's what we're really trying to establish."

Cubs rally late in win 57-55 at Scottsburg

Madison got key baskets from Oliver, Center and Welsh to take the lead and hit enough free throws down the stretch to pull out a 57-55 win over Scottsburg in boys basketball Friday on the road.

The Cubs trailed by as many as nine against one of their biggest rival and still faced a five-point deficit with 3:28 to play after a Hayden Cutter basket put Scottsburg ahead 53-48.

But Madison began chipping away. The freshman Oliver answered Cutter's basket with a 3-pointer to close the gap to two, Nick Center tied the game on a steal and a basket and Welsh put the Cubs ahead 55-53 with a field goal with 2:27 to play.

The score remained 55-53 for the next two minutes before Welsh hit a free throw with 29 seconds to play to push the margin to three. Brantley Deaton hit a bucket on the other end for Scottsburg to cut the lead to one with 14 seconds to go and Center hit a free throw with nine seconds left to put the margin back to two.

Scottsburg had a chance to win the game but Treyton Owen's 3-pointer at the buzzer went wide.

Madison shot an impressive 65% (24-for-37) from the floor compared to 50% (21-for-42) for Scottsburg but was unable to pull away. The Cubs were just 2-of-9 (22%) on 3-point attempts compared to 5-of-11 (46%) by the Warriors.

Oliver had an impressive overall game, scoring 18 points on 8-of-11 shooting with five assists and four steals. He also drew eight fouls on the night.

Luke Miller had 11 points and Jackson Falconberry had eight for the Cubs.

Owens scored 18 points, Cutter had 13, Nicholas Sebastio 12 and Deaton 10 to lead Scottsburg.

Hilltoppers battle Providence in loss

Grote scored 18, Stuart 12 for Shawe

By ROB LAFARY
Courier Staff Writer
sports@madisoncourier.com

Shawe's efforts on the floor matched Providence step-for-step but the Pioneers had the advantage in terms of execution and pulled away to a 64-43 boys basketball victory on Saturday night at the Meny Gymnasium.

The Hilltoppers put their bodies on the line and for three quarters stayed with a heavily favored Pioneer team but despite Shawe's gutsy play, Providence persevered. The Pioneers used a 21-8 fourth-quarter run to seal the win and tack on Shawe's second loss of the weekend.

"I said at the beginning since I took over here, all I ask is that we battle for 32 minutes," Shawe head coach Dan Hambrick said. "I'm not going to give up, my guys aren't going to give up and we are going to battle. Playing teams like we did tonight and on Friday against Oldenburg are going to make us better at the end of the year. These games make us better."

Shawe spent the first half riding the hot-shooting of Henry Grote to keep up with a well-balanced Providence scoring attack.

While Zack Johnson scored six points to pace Providence in the first frame, Grote scored five points as Shawe trailed just 11-8 at the end of the quarter and Grote's hot streak continued into the second as he used the 3-point shot to his advantage.

Grote drilled three 3-pointers in the second period, giving him 14 points in the first half. Sterling Huber caught fire and answered Grote's barrage with three of his own and a free throw for 10 points in the quarter to give Providence a 26-19 halftime lead but the Hilltoppers were still in position to strike heading into the second half.

"Henry kind of had a rough night on Friday from the 3-point line," Hambrick said. "Friday night he hit the first three and we thought OK here we go but then he struggled. Tonight he hit the first three and then the second one. Somebody hits like Henry the whole momentum changes. We were just a few points out at halftime and I thought we had some good looks to put us in that position."

Unfortunately for the Hilltoppers, Grote's shooting cooled off considerably and Providence raced out to its first double-digit lead of the night, using eight more points from Huber and nine points by Austin Grantz to increase its advantage.

Down by as many as 13 points, Shawe battled back, using eight points from Ethan Stuart to get back on track and trim the deficit to 43-35 heading into the fourth quarter but the Pioneers had picked up enough steam to go on their own fourth quarter run and run away with the win.

Grantz scored six points and Huber added two buckets to again pace Providence. Grote and Stuart, who had combined for 26 of the team's points through three quarters, were each held to two points in the final frame and the offense never recovered from not having its two top scorers in rhythm at the end.

"Yet again, another night where we face a long and athletic team," Hambrick said. "Tonight it was hard to matchup and the difference was this Providence team was so physical. It's really tough to match up and even when we think we are blocking out or doing some things well, we just can't overcome matchup problems. We knew it was going to be a tough weekend and now we have to take the lessons learned and get ourselves ready for the rest of this month and February."

Providence (8-3) was led by Huber's 22 points while Grantz scored 18. Nine different players reached the score column for the Pioneers.

Henry Grote finished with 18 points to pace Shawe while Stuart scored 10 points in the second half en route to 12 points.

Battle of the Badges Blood Drive

Participants donate blood to American Red Cross

Jennifer DeVries (left) makes a face while donating blood during the American Red Cross Battle of the Badges Blood Drive at Clifty Falls State Park Thursday. The wife of Madison Fire Chief Bill DeVries and a nurse herself, DeVries laughed off her grimace noting that donating is virtually painless and saves many lives. She said she donates whenever she is eligible and can fit donation into her schedule. Blake Thompson, of Madison (right), relaxes while donating blood during the American Red Cross Battle of the Badges Blood Drive at Clifty Falls State Park Thursday. Thompson said he tries to donate regularly and has given more than a gallon so far in his lifetime — all a pint at a time. The process takes about an hour and four more opportunities to donate blood are scheduled locally this month — at Calvary Baptist Church Jan. 14, Walmart Jan. 16, North Madison Christian Church Jan. 20 and Ivy Tech Community College Jan 30. Centra scholarship

Centra Foundation is now accepting applications for the 2020 Loretta M. Burd Scholarship Program. This program awards 25 graduating high school seniors with $2,500 scholarships this year.

The foundation will also be awarding two $2,500 scholarships for adult or non-traditional students who have returned to school to pursue an undergraduate degree or certification.

Named in honor of Loretta M. Burd, who retired from Centra Credit Union after 47 years, the Loretta M. Burd Scholarship Program is designed to help local students pursuing a college or technical school education.

To qualify for a scholarship, the applicant or applicant's parent or legal guardian must be a member of Centra Credit Union with an account in good standing. Awards can be used at two- or four-year colleges, universities or technical schools for the fall 2020 semester.

All applications will be reviewed on academic achievements, school and community involvement, work history and a short essay about financial literacy. The scholarship places value on well-rounded students who display a strong work ethic and involvement in their local community. Applications will be accepted through Feb. 29 at https://www.centra.org/scholarships/ and recipients will be announced in April.

Centra Foundation is the charitable arm of Centra Credit Union and was formed to extend the credit union's mission of people helping people. The Centra Foundation is centered on caring and aims to support charitable efforts that help meet the needs of communities where Centra members live and work.

The joy of comparing gifts

Annie Lane

Dear Annie: I read your column daily and always like your tough love and sensible advice. I'm interested in what your advice would be in the following situation. It involves gift giving at Christmas for nieces and nephews. My daughter does not feel that her brother gave as much to her sons as she did to his daughter and two stepchildren. She feels she was far more generous than he was. I understand that this is not my problem but am curious about what your advice would be to her. Expense is not an issue. Also, my son's wife does not involve herself in shopping for gifts for his nephews. It may be that men just shop differently than women. — Dreading Next Christmas

Dear Dreading Next Christmas: I think that if your daughter is going to get out the abacus and compare receipts, she and your son ought to just skip buying presents for each other's children next year. Instead, the children could do a secret Santa among themselves — crafting gifts or using allowance money to buy small items, depending on their ages — so that they might learn the joy of giving.

Dear Annie: I have an 88-year-old friend who can't hear and refuses to get tested for a hearing aid. I have talked with her many times about this situation, but she either makes excuses about her hearing problem or gets angry and refuses to discuss the issue. She just smiles and nods when people try to talk to her or tells them she can't understand them. Talking on the phone with her is impossible. And her hearing problem has gotten her into trouble when she's at appointments with doctors, as she sometimes misses what they tell her.

The cost is not an issue, because she could easily afford hearing aids, and I have offered to drive her to any appointments. You cannot have a conversation with her, and she is becoming more isolated and distracted in her interactions with others. I am losing patience with her. Help! — Frustrated Friend

Dear Frustrated Friend: Denial can be a dangerous coping mechanism, but it's a coping mechanism nonetheless — so your friend will cling to it until she's ready to let go. Continue encouraging her to get her hearing tested, and even suggest getting your own hearing checked at the same time. If she were to feel less singled out, she might feel less defensive and more open to the idea. There are some rudimentary hearing tests available online. You could pull one up on your phone, tablet or computer the next time you're together. These online tests are no substitute for medical attention, of course, but might be a good first step to get her moving in the right direction.

BRIDGE

IF THEY DON'T COVER, THEY DON'T HAVE IT

Charles de Gaulle said, "We may go to the moon, but that's not very far. The greatest distance we have to cover still lies within us."

That is an interesting thought. We have a cover in bridge, which was relevant in this deal from an international tournament some years ago. How should South plan the play in three no-trump after West leads a fourth-highest diamond four to East's jack and his own queen? Once you have decided, look at the West hand. Would you have overcalled one diamond?

Declarer starts with seven top tricks: two diamonds and five clubs. A heart trick may be established, but South also needs a spade trick. However, if he misguesses spades, running the jack, East will return a diamond, establishing his partner's suit while West holds the spade ace as an entry.

At the first table, West made the pointless one-diamond overcall opposite a passed partner. So South immediately played a spade to dummy's king. When that won, he led a heart to his queen and had nine tricks.

At the other table, South didn't have that advantage. But at trick two, he led the spade jack. When West played low smoothly, declarer called for dummy's king and also won nine tricks.

South judged that if West had the spade queen, he would have covered the jack, especially with the 10 in the dummy -- or at least would have thought about it. And if West didn't have the queen, perhaps he had the ace.

As Zia Mahmood said in a Bols bridge tip many years ago, if they don't cover, they don't have it.
